

The Coachcap Catch Up

Recruitment made easy

FOR JHA Recruitment and Staff @ Work, sourcing unusual products on demand is easy with Coachcap.

Managing Director, Jane Heynes knows her company's needs can be quiet peculiar, from Hi-Vis rain jackets to safety glasses, sunscreen lotion to hard hats, however it gives her peace of mind that Coachcap always lends a helping hand.

"The good thing is that you guys listen to what we want," she said.

"You are friendly and most importantly you deliver."

JHA are an employment agency who provide skill-hire, traffic control services, and recruitment services throughout the Northern Rivers.

They also offer HR, management and OH&S consulting, on-line assessment of candidates, as well as providing training services.

Coachcap service the majority of their 250 employees, providing equipment and uniforms mainly for those who work as outdoor workers for Councils.

Through job placement and recruitment they offer opportunities to work within a variety of different industries ranging from construction to IT, and local and state government to finance and plant operators.

"We are a very demanding customer, we need things that are never stock standard," Jane said.

"But Coachcap always seem to source it for us."

JHA have recently increased their own storage area and have started buying in bulk.

This is a great idea for all businesses as it becomes much cheaper in the long run.

JHA operate seven days a week, 24 hours a day, and have affiliates throughout NSW, Canberra, Queensland, and South Australia.

Look good while you work hard on the land

BISLEY have proven once again why they are the work wear specialists with the introduction of their first ever Women's Work and Safety Wear lines.

Female workers can now purchase their own long sleeve drill shirt, shorts and pants, moving away from the basic permanent press options they had previously.

All items include features such as front pleats, side and patch pockets, mobile phone pocket and key loop as well as being static resistant.

Drill shirt, shorts and pants come in stone and navy.

The new Safety Wear line includes a regular two-tone long sleeve Hi Vis drill shirt as well as one with reflective tape. They are available in orange-navy and yellow-navy.

Each line comes with a 50+ sun protection range.

Also new to Bisley is the Workflex Extreme Range Workboot and Work Socks.

The six new styles of workboot are made to comfort the high impact zones and stress points of the foot.

Flair for your stationary and gift packs

COACHCAP is always looking for new ways to apply your logo to products.

Pad printing is a wet ink transfer process used to print on an irregular or curved surface, most notably that of mugs, pens, and golf balls.

It is an easy, cheap way of applying your logo to a variety of great gift ideas. It can also give your business a professional look.

When used creatively, pad printing can be a great way of promoting your business especially through your office stationary.

Sporting clubs can also use it to commemorate big events, with individual athletes now having the choice to personalise their game balls.
